PROFILE

Vincent Liew started photography in 1988 and after a few years he went on to study oil painting. In the following years, he combined his learning and knowledge of the two mediums in his works. His works primarily centred on the subsistence of, people or nature, within their environment and he had never been able to fully express his surrealist creations until the onset of the digital age.

Vincent was awarded a Master of Arts scholarship by the prestigious Nanyang Technological University to study Photography. He lectured regularly on photography and had conducted several public workshops. He is one of the few photography educators that had taught Photography as a subject at IGCSE standard (O-level equivalent) in Singapore and his students had achieved outstanding results including scoring distinctions. He is also mentoring arts undergrads from the LaSalle College of the Arts and was one of the key mentors for the Art Photography Mentorship & Exhibition program (APME); a program that was aimed at discovering and training talented photographers on a national level. The APME is supported the National Arts Council, National Youth Council and the National Library.

Vincent officially joined the Photographic Society of Singapore (PSS) in 1990, even though he had been volunteering since 1988. Since then, he had held several significant leadership positions in PSS, including as Curator of the Loke Wan Tho Gallery, and is currently holding the role of Honorary Secretary and an ex-officio Member of the Board. He also undertook a secondary role as the Director of Alliance & Partnerships and had spearheaded many educational programs, community engagement programs, fund-raising events, and projects involving the development of relations and cultural exchanges with other international photography institutions. Vincent has a special interest in promoting the works of local photographers overseas.

INTERVIEWS

Interviewed by radio station 95.8FM on photography as a lifestyle.

Interviewed by the People's Association of Singapore with which I talked about the role and responsibilities of photography in engaging the community.

Vincent is the current International Exhibition Chairman (Nature Division) and a Star Ratings Director of the Photographic Society of America as well as the Global Photographic Union's Country Representative for Singapore. He is also a member of the Development Committee for The Photographic Society of America and The Photographic Society of Singapore; to chart the future direction of these art societies. Vincent is an international photography competition adjudicator, a photography educator, a curator and a strong advocate in developing photography arts and culture through alliance and partnerships with domestic organizations and across the globe. In addition, he has a special interest in providing consultancy to the development of arts groups and societies on top of his passion in writing photography-related essays.
